

I do not want control of the media to become more concentrated than it already is. I will take further deregulation as evidence of the Bush administration's hostility to democracy. This administration is already acting determined to promote big business at the expense of everything and everybody else, but acting to silence multiple points of view by allowing a few conglomerates to control most of the widely-available daily information is a bomb dropped directly on our democracy.